Second
Conference
International
Terrorism

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Casey,

International terrorism looms as a major threat to free societies. The growing number of terrorist attacks, the increasing destructiveness of terrorist weapons, and the siege atmosphere around government buildings in every Western capital are constant reminders that international terrorism is limited neither by distance nor choice of target.

What has made the growth of world terrorism possible? What is the nature of the threat it poses? Can anything be done to curb it?

To address these questions the Jonathan Institute is sponsoring a conference on international terrorism at the Four Seasons Hotel in Washington, D.C. on June 24-26, 1984. The Institute is a private research foundation named after Colonel Jonathan Netanyahu who fell while leading the rescue mission at Entebbe.

The participants will include statesmen, parliamentarians, scholars, security officials, and journalists from the United States, England, France, Italy, West Germany, Japan, Australia, Israel and other countries.

Secretary of State George Shultz, Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, and Judge William Webster of the FBI will be among the officials of the United States government who will address the conference. David Brinkley and Ted Koppel will be among the moderators.

Admission will be by invitation only. As space is limited, we would appreciate a reply by June 14. We very much hope you will be able to join us.

Yours sincerely,

Chalfont

Lord Chalfont
